New access and visitation rules: DüsselLand now even more visitor-friendly

New access and location regulations are now in force at the DüsselLand pop-up leisure park at the Düsseldorf exhibition grounds. "In doing so, we are following the amended Corona Protection Ordinance of the State of NRW, which gives us more options," says organiser Oscar Bruch. "We already had to draw up our concept two months ago. And a lot has changed since then. Now we are happy to be able to pass on the benefits to our guests."

The news:

- The slots have been cancelled, so there is no time limit. Visitors may visit the Pop-Up Leisure Park for as long as they wish - Monday to Friday from 12.45 to 21.30, Saturday from 11 to 21.30 and Sunday from 11 to 20.
- Day ticket offices are now set up at the only entrance to DüsselLand – the North Entrance of Messe Düsseldorf.
- The admission tickets cost eight euros on all days. Anyone who has already booked online at a higher price will be refunded the difference at the box office. Children under six years of age have free admission.

The high-wire acrobats, the "Geschwister Weisheit", perform Monday to Friday at 3:00, 6:00 and 8.30 pm to present their breathtaking show at a height of 40 metres. On Sundays the shows take place at 1:00, 3:00 and 6:00 pm. On Saturdays the acrobats perform four times, namely at 1:00, 3:00, 6:00 and 8.30 o.

Admission to the children's Kasperle show is now free.

The distance rules, compulsory masks on the rides and hygiene regulations still apply.
